

INTEGRATED CIRCUIT DESIGN SYSTEM

Abstract

An integrated circuit design system has a second interface for displaying a plurality of description instructions corresponding to a specific integrated circuit according to a variety of display instructions, a first interface for inputting the display instructions and for updating a description instruction displayed on the second interface according to a display instruction input to the second interface, and a logic unit for updating remaining description instructions of the plurality of description instructions according to an updated description instruction updated by the first interface.